Harvesting scallops, millions of which are taken each day from their beds along the Long Island shore, is one of the interesting topics in Universal Screen Magazine No. 32. Another is a new device for preventing bridge accidents. This method is exemplified when a bridge across the Chicago River opens to permit passage of a large ship, a giant boom safeguards the occupants of a rampant street-car and of automobiles, and prevents their dashing into the waters below. Woman's military activity in support of the soldier in the trenches, and the method of preparing pickles for the market, and their inspection by the Health Department, together with the series of "Heroes in Mud" by Willie Hopkins, complete an unusually interesting reel.
